Mails for Europe.

THE NEW YORK WEEKLY HERALD. The American mail steamship Atlantic Captain West Liverpeel. The European and Asiatic mails will close to morrow marning at a quarter before 11 o'clock. The NEW YORK WESSELY HERALD, with the latest news, published in English and French, will be issued at half-past nine o'dock. Single copies, in wrappers, sixpence.

The lightning of yesterday compelled all the Southern lines of telegraphs to suspend operations till ten o'clock at night, and even when they did commence operations it was almost impossible to get a clue to the meaning of some of the despatches-Our special Washington correspondent informs us that Ex-Gov. Marcy, in reply to Capt. Scott's letter of inquiry, writes that he has always approved of the Compromise measures, and shall always feel-bound to do all in his power to preserve them inviolate. This settles the question. All the preminent democrats for the Presidency have now poken out boldly on this question-they have left no leophole through which they can back out. Will not Gen. Scott do the same ? We shall see.

According to the report of the proseedings in the United States Senate, yester day, one of the preposed amendments to the Deficiency bill, with regard to additional compensation to the Collins steamers, was rejected by a vote of 18 ayes to 26 navs-at least so say the wires. It is pretty certain that a large majority of Senators are favorable to extending the aid necessary for the continuance of this line, and no doubt the original proposition of $33,000 per trip will eventually pass. This is due to the commerce, the patriotism and the enterprise of the nation.

There was another long-winded debate on the compromise measures in the House of Representatives yesterday, which was very appropriately wound up by a lunatic in the gallery, who was de-Firous of enlightening the learned body with regard te their duties. Whether the man was crazy before he entered the House, or whether he was rendered so by the wild and unbusinesslike proceedings of the members, the report does not say.

The proceedings of the different religious conventions throughout the country, which are given this morning, possess considerable interest. It appears that the Universalists, now in convention at Boston, are exceedingly troubled about the Compromise measures of the last Congress; and one of the speakers in the course of his remarks, gloried in the fact of having managed to disseminate abolition doctrines in Kentucky some years ago, under the protence of arguing against capital punishment. New this is a direct confession of having been guilty of duplicity. Abolitionists will doubtless eulogise the gentleman for his hypocrisy, but it is very eertain that good Christians will not.

Quite an excitement appears to have been created by the rowdy proceedings at the temperance gathering in Francuil Hall, Boston, last evening. After the fighting men had been expelled, a gentleman had his pecket picked.

The abolitionists of Boston were particularly savage against the Methodist church, and Webster and Kessuth, yesterday. Their malignity does not appear to have interfered with the reception of the Inter at Buffals yesterday.

The proceedings of the Women's Rights Convention, at Massillon, Ohio, are reported to have been conducted in an able and dignified manner. Having managed to keep out Abby Kelly, Greeley, and some of the other old fogies of the fraternity, these female refermers are now getting along in a somewhat more satisfactory way to themselves, and in a more sensible manner.

The telegraphs this morning, furnish the partieulars of several maritime disasters, in different directions, in which many lives were lost.

Affairs in Buenos Ayres appear to be in a very quiet and satisfactory state. Nine days later news from that quarter was received yesterday, which indicates that thus far the order of things was rapidly developing the resources of the Plate pro-

Free Farms for Everybody.

Last evening, a homestead mass meeting was held in the Park, as will be seen by our report of the proceedings.

The progressive democrats and progressive whigs have taken up this electioneering humbug, in view of the Presidential election-each faction trying to bid higher than the other for the popular vote. But they both miscalculate. They will get very few votes in return for this humbag. The shrewd mass of the people know full well that a free farm in the for West would be perfectly useless to the great majority of them, on the condition which would, of course, be attached to its possession, in the event of such an absurd enactment being passed by Congress. Every man would have to settle upon the farm granted to him. But we should like to know hew many of the lazy loafers who are advocating this measure, would accept a farm under such condi tions: or whether mechanics, in our large towns, would abandon their occupations and turn farmers? Where would they get the stock, and the farming utensils, and the large capital necessary to clear and cultivate these farms, and render them productiveto say nothing of the expense of conveying thempelves and their families to such a distance? And supposing them to be possessed of the pecessary means, why, the purchase of a farm would be a mere nothing, compared with the outlay to bring it into cultivation. The value of the unreclaimed land is the smallest item of the expense.

It is not the price of a farm that stands in the way of people becoming farmers, but the price of labor, and the price of stock, want of skill, the distance, and other considerations. A free farm, therefore, in the wilderness, is of no use to a man without means, and is no inducement to a man with means. What do mechanics or the great majority of citizens know about farming ? They could not earn coats to their backs by agriculture. It is well known that from four to five per cent is the most that can be realized by capital invested in farming operations. The thing sounds very fine to men who never reflect, and never look beneath the surface of any humbug. But it is as purely visionary as Kessuch's pitched battles, and his utoping republic that is to be in Hungary. If the bill should pass to-morrow, it would not bring another acre of ground into cultivation; or if it did, it would put or keep as many neres out of cultivation somewhere else.

The men who cry out for this sovereign remedy for every ill, are chiefly those who call them-elves "industrials," most of them proving their industry by neglecting to mend their pantaloons, while they are very busy in trying to mend constitutions. What these gentlemen at large most want, is the passage of some grand panacea in the shape of a law, that will render work (of which they entertain a hely horror) entirely unnecessary for all time to come. But a free farm requires some very hard work to make anything out of it. This, therefore, is not what they desire. They are for the most part socialists and atheists, who do not regard the ebligations of the Christian religion, which says, if any man will not work, neither let him ent." On principle, they hold work in utter detestation. but have no objection to appropriate the labor of ethers, accumulated in the shape of property, of which they want a division. Free farms would probably satisfy them to a certain extent, if they eculd also get the ground cleared and ploughed free, the seed sown free, and the crops reaped free, having them nothing to do but to enjoy the officer cum dignitate of eating the fruits of the earth ofthout any sweat on their brows. But this is not the lot of man here below, whatever it may be in the Elysiam of the other world.

The politicians and statestson who have taken this matter up, knew all this as well as we do. Duniel Webster is one of these distinguished individuals; and as he was in town, why was he not invited to the meeting? Perhaps by his eloquence he could have "music the worse appear the better reason," and at the same time manufacture a little political capital on his way to Washington.

We should like to have known what is the opinion of "the great expounder of the constitution" of the irentar of Captain John Scott, and whether if elected President he would toe the mark, and veto any bill that would nullify, or impair the officacy of the Fugitive Slave law. This was not touched upon by any of the speakers, though it is the great topic which, together with the Maine Liquor law, is absorbing the public interest. As for the Homestead bill, it is all sham.

THE ART UNION AND ITS PROBABLE DESTINY .-Several inquiries have been put to us lately, from various quarters, by numerous subscribers of the American Art Union, as to the destiny of that institution, and the fate which will overtake its large accumulation of funds-an accumulation amounting to a hundred and fifty thousand doliars. have heard little, of late, tending to give usany idea or foretaste of the decision of the Supreme Court of this city, in respect to the constitutionality of the Art Union; but we understand that the Judges have made up their minds on the subject, and that their decision will be pronounced to-morrow. Whatever this decision may be, coming from the Supreme Court, is not of so much consequence, except it should concur with the decision of the Recorder, and affirm his judgment as to the unconstitutionality and illegality of the institution, as it has been conducted. If the Supreme Court should decide in its favor, the question will then be carried to a higher court-the Court of Appeals; and, judging from the independence, the strong American good sense, and the sound legal principles which that high tribunal has displayed in its late decision against the great legislative canal juggle of this State, we cannot doubt but they will decide against the small Art Union juggle; for both acts seem to have been passed by the Legislature through ignorance, preumption, and regardlessness of the fundamental law of the State.

But another important question will still remain and that is, the disposition of the property of the Art Union. According to the decision of Judge Duer-who studiously abstained from touching the constitutional question-it seems that the property of the institution does not belong to the subscribers at all. Whether the charter of the association was right or wrong, Judge Duer was positive in his opinion that the subscribers had no rights-a decision almost equivalent to that which should declare that the subscribers in banking, insurance or railroad companies had, by the very fact of their taking stock and paying money for shares, deprived themselves of all right or title in the property of those associations. Such was the strange and illogical decision of Judge Duer, on that branch of the case presented to him; and if it had been given by any other than the same sensible man who made the sound speech before the insane revellers at the Kossuth festival in this city, we should have believed that the person so deciding had been visiting the Rochester knockers, and had received intimation from the spirit of some deceased Franklin or Bacon, that such was the proper legal view of the Art Union question.

So that, whatever may be decided to-morrow by the Supreme Court, in respect to the constitutionality of the Art Union, it will have to be further decided what is to become of all the property of the association, who are the owners of it, or if it has any owners at all. The truth of the matter is, if the practices of the Art Union in drawing lotteries had been charged and proven against Tom, Dick or Harry, of the Five Points, instead of against the Hon. John Smith and others-bankers, lawyers, politicians and other great men-there would have been no difficulty in deciding, long since, on the case, and Tom, Dick or Harry, of the Five Points, would, before this time, have served out their term of imprisonment in the penitentiary, for the offence of being engaged in lotteries, contrary to law.

CURIOUS OPERA DISCLOSURES-THE CASE OF FRY ERSUS BENNETT .- We understand that the case Fry vs. Bennett-a suit for libel, instituted by a former manager of the Astor Place Opera House, against the New York HERALD, for certain statements concerning the management of Italian operain this city-will soon come on before a judge and jury, and will reveal some of the most curious and remarkable features of opera management that ever were exhibited in any civilized country. Some of the preliminary legal investigations are now going on, in consequence of several of the witnesses in the matter being about to depart from the country; and the evidence disclosed by them is of the most laughable, curious, and original description, displaying opera management, or rather mismanagement, in a very ludierous light. These disclosures will embrace the peculiar system of oyster cellar criticism, and an expose of the habits of oyster cellar critics, of the manners and doings of managers behind the curtain, and of prime donne in the " green room," to an extent which will throw much light on the history of Italian opera in this city. We are about beginning a new era in operatic affairs in New York, and in this country, by the proposition for erecting three new Italian opera houses; and the revelations of the private history of recent management in that line, which this suit will bring out before the world, will tend to benefit future managers and future opera singers, to an extent beyond what is now dreamed of.

THE VILLOW FREE IN BRAZIL -The news received on Wednesday from Pernambuco, stated that the deaths at Rio de Janeiro were from eighty to ninety a day. That statement was probably an exaggeration of the truth. Annexed is a report of the four public bospitals of Rio:

There are two weeks wanting, of which we have no papers; but private letters complain of heat, but not of dekness-and taking in consideration that all deaths are not from yellow fever, it will be perceived that, after all. the disease is not so very bad in a city the population of which is near 500,000. The mortality on board of ves was owing to bad living, wet clothes, and the imprudence of sailors when in port.

Tor Turstens.-The amusements presented at each establishment, for this evening, are such as cannot fall to please the volaries of the drama. For particulars, see ndvertisements.

PROCLAMATION.

Argentines:—If my voice, faitful ceho of the sentiments that naturate a man devoted from his youth to the service of the country, merit your consideration and respect; if twenty years of privations, of vicinsitudes and of war, are worth anything in your estimation; if the revolution of the lat of May and its consequences are sufficient titles to lay down principles, and diffuse maxims of national order had constitution, I consider myself, comparints, fully entitled to address you, and to sanction my observations by these antecedents. When in view of the droadful pitture of a violent and retrogate administration, exhibited to the world by a privorse son of the republic, it conceived the idea of superting the throne of the typate, and recetablishing the reign of liberal institutions in the Plate, it was because I heard the silent shout of the community, protesting against the ambition and barbarity of their oppressors. The moment appeared to me to have arrived for presenting them with the rich gift of liberty, as being new fully worthy of it. The long period of twenty years of abuses, and of the most degrading despotism, were a fylliant televil for the young sections of the republic, where vararies had given hirth to the eminous monster that to its merited social rank without regarding spinions, per supplied that these estimable qualities may be associate with all political colors—such has been my march at the head of the Pravince of Entre Rice, which has given as it result a general progress and extended to all the branche of the schministration. MONEY MARKET.

THURSDAY, May 27-6 P. M. There was more activity in the stock market to-day and better prices were realized. There is, however, no new feature to notice-no indication of any improvement of an important or permanent character. With all the abundance of money-with the facilities with which stocks can be purchased and hypothecated. there appears to be no disposition on the part of those who are not at present involved in the speculation, to enter at current rates At the first board, to-day, Eric Railroad advanced 1/2 per cent; Harlem, 3; Norwich and Worcester, 3; Long Island, W: Panama Railroad, 36; New Jersey Zine, 34 Canton Company, 14; Harlem Extension Bonds, 1; Ocean Bank, 34; Florence and Keyport, 34. Railroad bond were in demand, and closed firm at our quotations. We shall have a steamer in from San Juan or Chagres in a few days, with another large remittance of gold dust from California. This will add to our already large accumulation of precious metals, and may give an impetus to the stock market. At the second board the market wa firm at quotations, but the transactions were limited. Holders do not appear anxious to realize at present prices.
